Article link : https://bit.ly/3NBCVTm (Why do high IQ people stagnate in their careers?)

1. Based on the article, which of the following is incorrect?

A.There is a positive correlation between beneficial life outcomes and general intelligence
B.Trait and ability emotional intelligences are two sides of the same cognitive coin
C.The feeling of boredom is due to an emotional disconnect from your goals
D.Goleman's model looks at both emotional competencies and skills in analysing emotional intelligence

Explanation : B
Note the line, 'The problem is that researchers aren't sure if trait and ability emotional intelligences are two sides of the same cognitive coin or if they are two distinct operations.'

2. The differentiating ability between star performers and everyone else is not IQ but emotional intelligence because:

A.There is an IQ floor for any given role, so IQ is no longer a differentiating factor, whereas the ability to build collaborative relationships and moderate emotional responses, which is key to success, depends on emotional intelligence
B.General intelligence and emotional intelligence are distinct and the presence of the former usually precludes the latter, so many people who are book smart lack emotional intelligence
C.Emotional intelligence is like a personality trait, so improving it is a tall order as it requires altering not only how you think and behave but also your self-perception
D.All the above

Explanation: A
Option A is clearly mentioned in the article. The article does not say the presence of general intelligence rules out emotional intelligence. So option B is incorrect. Option C is unrelated to the question.

3. The use of problem-based assessments in tests for ability emotional intelligence:

A.Helps address the problem of subjectivity in assessments by others
B.Still has the issue that emotional and relational problems do not have exact or correct solutions
C.Remove the problems that arise due to self-reporting
D.All the above

Explanation: D
All given points are mentioned in the article.
